

Healthx Platform Core Applications - Delivery Network

Communication that Actually Works

The Healthx Delivery Network incorporates an innovative Communications System into the day-to-day functions of your company. It is designed to assist you in engaging your users, keeping you connected with your members, employers, providers and brokers and handling everything from U.S. Mail, E-mail, Faxes, SMS TXT messaging and Scripted Telephony.

Just One Place to Go to Use Many Communication Methods

Healthx provides your users with one place to store their information and let you know how best to communicate and engage them. This allows you, as the administrator, to communicate with your user community via a variety of modalities, based upon the preferences of that individual. In it's simplest terms; the Healthx solution integrates data and effectively delivers information to users based on their personal preferences.

Changes in the database trigger outbound notifications, and the modality of that notification is matched up with the preference of the user.

Easy to Administer Self-service at its Best

New users may be easily added or removed by administrators at any time, individually or in bulk via imported spreadsheets. From these Segments, mass communications may be handled with ease, designating individually customized and preferred communications options -- down to each single user or across entire distribution lists as required. People receive information in the way they are most likely to respond -- phone, email, fax, or text. You may also estimate the costs upfront for any mass communication - all right from within the Communications System. Generate reports of your transactions and view histories at the touch of a button. It's all in there.
